MISSIONARIES TO ANGOLA, AFRICA

Building and Rebuilding

See, I lay a stone in Zion, a tested stone, a precious cornerstone for a sure foundation; the one who trusts will never be dismayed. ~ Isaiah 28:16

Driving through Luanda, Angola, is an experience.

In addition to the general state of disrepair of the roads, the car-swallowing potholes, and the constant confusion of tanker trucks, container haulers, motorcycles, buses, cars and daredevil taxis, one of the things that you are sure to notice in the city is the construction. It is everywhere.

The bay is being dredged to augment the waterfront with more sand and land for building. Dozens of cranes constantly skyline the city while constructing corporate offices, high-end hotels, and apartments. Entire neighborhoods are being removed in favor of new government buildings, and the inhabitants of those neighborhoods are being transplanted to pre-planned communities, complete with apartment complexes, schools, medical clinics, and social services.

You can see all this when you drive through Luanda and it is obvious that, after four decades of war, Angola-at-peace is rebuilding itself as fast as it can.

The Bible speaks of building in a number of different ways. When referencing the building that is done by God it always has a meaning of permanence. What God builds, lasts. Period. It is permanent; forever.

Angola is rebuilding its country and with many good results. At the same time, God is building His church in Angola - leaders are eager to learn the Word of God, all-night prayer services are packed out, the altars are full of unbelievers who are coming to Christ, churches are planting other churches - and His is a church that will last!

Rebuilding in a physical sense is both good and needed. Building a people and a church on the strong foundation of God's Word is essential. Thank you, friends, for standing with the church in Angola and with our family as we work together in this great harvest.
